

The Fathers of Confederation

Want to know who the men were who helped shape the beginnings of our country? These cards feature the photos and names of each of the fathers of confederation, along with what province they represented. Done in the style of 3 part cards from the Montessori method - there is a large card that has both the image and text and the 2 separate cards - one with just the image and one with the text so you can practice matching then checking against the full card.

Some ways to play:

- matching game like the video
- see if you can put the right name with the right picture and then check against the main card
- sort cards by province
- checking out the awesomeness of beards and facial hair in the 1860s....

Interesting fact: There were two men with the name John Hamilton Gray, from different provinces, who are both considered Fathers of Confederation!

If you know anyone else who would like these cards, please send them directly to my website to get their own copy instead of forwarding your copy.

Thank you!

Happy learning!
